Guidelines for an Academic Suspension Appeal

To successfully appeal an academic suspension, you must convince the Academic Standards Committee and the Vice Chancellor for Instruction that returning to UACCM before your suspension period is completed is the best strategy for you to be academically successful. The Committee evaluates your answers to the questions on the appeal form, documentation related to your circumstance, and academic record to see if there is a compelling reason why you should be allowed to enroll before your suspension period is complete. The Committee will then forward their recommendations to the Vice Chancellor for Instruction for a final decision.

Reasons for appealing an Academic Suspension

Examples of extenuating or extraordinary circumstances that may be considered acceptable for your appeal include, but are not limited to, the death of an immediate relative, serious illness of a family member or yourself, recent diagnosis of a learning disability or emotional disorder, severe financial issues, or personal crisis.

Documentation

The Academic Standards Committee requires documentation related to your particular circumstance. Examples of such documentation may be a physician's statement, proof of recently diagnosed disability, verification of visits to a mental health counselor, or verification of absences required to deal with family issues. Other forms of documentation may be more relevant for different circumstances.

Committee Recommendations and Final Decision

The recommendations of the Academic Standards Committee will be forwarded to the Vice Chancellor for Instruction for a final decision. If the committee recommends approval of the appeal, they will make specific recommendations and requirements, such as limiting the number of credit hours you may take in the semester, specific course recommendations, or participation in student success workshops. The Vice Chancellor for Instruction will notify you in writing the final outcome the appeal. Health insurance and/or financial aid eligibility will not be factored into the final decision.
