

Oh no, a bad dream can be quite scary,
But don't worry,
I'll help make it less dreary.
In the darkest night,
when dreams go awry,

Let's turn it around and give it a try.
In a land of shadows and eerie sights,
Where the moon hides behind the darkest nights,
I wandered through a twisted maze,
Haunted by fears in a haunting haze.
Monsters lurked in every corner I turned,
Their eyes glowing, my heart churned.
But fear not, my friend, for I'll be there,
To guide you through the darkness, I swear.

With courage in your heart, take my hand,
Together we'll escape this dreamland.
We'll face the nightmares, one by one,
And wake up to a brand new sun.
So fear not the dreams that make you scream,
For together, we'll conquer any bad dream.
